ZIMBABWE ANTI BULLYING SOCIETY:

MISSION

A Zimbabwe where disability is not seen as a curse or burden, but as different ability. A nation where stigma bullying and exclusion are replaced with dignity, belonging and opportunity.

VISION

To combat stigma, bullying, abuse, marginalization and exclusion of children and youths living with disabilities by building re-versed inclusive schools, assistive technology access hubs, and holistic empowerment programs that nurture strength, courage, and hope for independent living.

WHO WE ARE AND THE PROBLEM WE ARE SOLVING

ZABS is a registered private voluntary organization whose main objective is to combat stigma, marginalization, bullying and exclusion of children and youths living with disabilities in vulnera-ble communities in Zimbabwe. Orientation skills training for independent living.ZABS has grown into a leading voice for reversed inclusion, accessibility, and disability rights.

Today, we champion bold, innovative solutions that put dignity and equality at the centre of learning through reversed inclusive schools con-struction and assistive technology access program.

In the third quarter of 2026, the Zimbabwe Anti-Bullying Society (ZABS) strengthened its commitment to creating safer and more inclusive learning environments through a training programme for high school student ambassadors.

The training brought together selected learners who were equipped with knowledge and practical skills to recognise, prevent and respond to bullying within their schools. Key topics included anti-bullying awareness, the different effects of bullying on learners' emotional, psychological, social and academic well-being, and the importance of establishing clear reporting structures that enable victims and witnesses to report incidents safely.

Participants were also introduced to the concept of reverse inclusive education, which challenges traditional approaches to inclusion by placing learners with disabilities at the centre of the learning environment and encouraging schools to adapt to their diverse needs.

Empowering Caregivers, Growing Sustainable Futures:

At Zimbabwe Anti-Bullying Society (ZABS), we believe that empowering children with disabilities begins with strengthening the families and communities that support them.

Through our caregiver empowerment initiative, we are helping families build sustainable livelihoods through poultry production and environmentally friendly farming practices. The initiative equips caregivers with practical skills to generate household income, improve food security and become more economically independent.

Beyond poultry production, caregivers are also learning to turn organic waste into manure, creating a valuable, natural fertiliser for their home gardens. This approach promotes sustainable agriculture, reduces waste and encourages families to make productive use of locally available resources.

Our pioneering initiative began with five caregivers, marking an important step towards building resilient households and stronger support systems for children with disabilities.At ZABS, we recognise that inclusion goes beyond the classroom. It also means creating opportunities for families to live with dignity, independence and hope.
